JOINT MARKETING ALLIANCE ANNOUNCEMENT

Rahal International and Tradecos Announce Global Joint Marketing Alliance

We are pleased to announce that Rahal International and Tradecos have entered into a joint marketing alliance designed to further strengthen and expand the companies' global position, distribution capabilities, and support of customers and suppliers throughout the industry.

This alliance brings together two established and independently operated companies with complementary geographic reach, market expertise, and relationships across the global supply chain. Rahal International and Tradecos will remain completely independent companies, with no change to their respective corporate structures. The alliance also does not create any additional layers or intermediaries in our transactions. Instead, it allows the two organizations to work more closely together by leveraging their combined global marketing, sales, finance, sourcing, and distribution capabilities.

The objective of the alliance is straightforward: to better serve our customers and suppliers around the world. By combining our respective strengths and global networks, we expect to improve market access, enhance sourcing opportunities, increase efficiency, and provide our partners with broader resources and capabilities across key producing and consuming markets.

The complementary geographic footprints of the two companies, including their presence across both the Northern and Southern Hemispheres, will provide enhanced year-round access to supply, markets, and industry opportunities. Together, the alliance will have a presence across seven countries — the United States, Argentina, Chile, China, Spain, Brazil, and South Africa — providing access to major production regions and important global markets.

Combined, Rahal International and Tradecos represent more than $270 million in annual global sales, bringing together significant global market reach, established supplier and customer relationships, and a presence across key markets around the world.

Our combined capabilities will allow us to strengthen relationships throughout the supply chain while continuing to provide the personalized service, market knowledge, and long-term commitment that our customers and suppliers have come to expect.

The Rahal and Cohrs families are excited about this next chapter in the growth of our companies. We believe this alliance creates meaningful opportunities for our customers, suppliers, and partners and positions both organizations for continued growth in an increasingly global marketplace.

We sincerely appreciate the support and trust that our customers, suppliers, and industry partners have shared with us over many years. We look forward to building on those relationships and to what we can accomplish together in the years ahead.

Rahal International & Tradecos